

God's Gift of Color

Kindergarten celebrated the conclusion of our "Color Days" unit by taking a trip to the Crayola Factory in Easton, PA on November 4. The rainy day did not dampen our fun or excitement. We made paper scarecrows and puppets, and traced and painted fall leaves. We played with Model Magic and made it turn different colors, and we painted a moon or a planet with melted crayons. We also watched and learned how crayons and markers are made. One of the many highlights at Crayola was the canal and lock museum on the second floor. We got to learn firsthand how the lock system works by taking our own boats through a series of locks. And yes, some of us did get wet!! What a fun day we had celebrating the gift of color God gave us!

We also watched and learned how crayons and markers are made. One of the many highlights at Crayola was the canal and lock museum on the second floor. We got to learn firsthand how the lock system works by taking our own boats through a series of locks. And yes, some of us did get wet!! What a fun day we had celebrating the gift of color God gave us!

By Bonnie Taylor

