

Junior Class attends “The Screwtape Letters” at The Westside Theatre in New York City

This fall PCS juniors traveled to Staten Island, rode the free ferry into Manhattan, and climbed on board the subway. After lunch near Central Park, the students and chaperones had a brisk walk to The Westside Theatre where they enjoyed the two person stage performance of “The Screwtape Letters,” based on C.S. Lewis’ book by the same title. The 11th graders read “The Screwtape Letters,” by C.S. Lewis, for their summer reading in preparation for junior year Bible, and it was a wonderful chance to see the book come to life on stage. Read Helen Harvey’s evaluative essay on The Screwtape Letters to get a student’s perspective on the play. Additionally, the field trip spurred several students to write creative pieces. Read Francesca Mayr’s “Wormwood’s Letter: Between Chapters 15 and 16” and Hayley Klinger’s “Chapters 22 and 23 Revisited.”
